ALTERNATIVE AVIATION FUELS: GET DOWN TO BUSINESS

SO MUCH ACCOMPLISHED ALREADY

The field of alternative aviation fuels has made tremendous strides forward in the past seven years.

Passing one milestone after another and overcoming numerous technical challenges these fuels are now recognized and accepted as a viable option for the world's commercial and military fleets.

Dozens of commercial flights have successfully flown on alternative fuels.

The alternative aviation fuels industry has moved forward at a pace few could have imagined.

However, a dedicated group of talented individuals did more than just "imagine." They made it happen!

By forming close collaborative teams, CAAFI has addressed the technical, environmental, certification and business development challenges that needed to be overcome to make aviation alternative fuels a reality.

THE FUTURE IS RIGHT HERE

CAAFI continues to foster cooperative interaction between relevant participants in the global alternative aviation fuels supply chain, including public and private sector fuels users, manufacturers, feedstock suppliers, research centers, regulators and investors.

Nowhere is this spirit of cooperation more evident than at CAAFI's General Meetings, where hundreds of professionals gather for two days of intense and enlightening discussions with peers. Through structured presentations and networking events, CAAFI general meetings have created the bonds that have facilitated the teams, that have brought alternative aviation fuels to where they are today.

But there are still goals to be realized. The industry, although now recognized as a global force, has much to accomplish as it ramps up production to meet an enormous worldwide demand. Collaboration and cooperation remain the best way for progress to continue. The CAAFI General Meeting is recognized as the venue where progress is made.

The CAAFI Conference & Expo will take place in Washington, DC on Tuesday, January 28 and Wednesday, January 29 at the Washington Marriott. Information and application materials are available at www.caafexpo.com.
